WHEN TO GO

Depending on the season, The Ranch can morph into a drastically different place. Expect snow (and lots of ice skating and skiing) in the winter; come summer, it's all about hiking and swimming.

2

WHO TO ASK FOR

The staff wears many different hats (your yoga instructor may be your spa therapist), and is always accommodating. General manager Jade McBride is a fixture on the property and can help with any request (he can even have the Granite Spa stay open late).

relax.

WHAT TO GET

The spa menu isn't extensive, but every treatment is top-notch. The aromatherapy-focused Raindrop Therapy utilizes eight different Doterra essential oils for bringing your body back to balance.

THE RANCH AT ROCK CREEK

MONTANA — "Roughing it" takes on a whole new meaning at the mega-luxurious, fully inclusive The Ranch at Rock Creek in Philipsburg. The gorgeous scenery is best described as "remote and rugged," but the accommodations, world-class cuisine and unique spa treatments make for a next-level experience. Whether you want to try "Snowga" (yoga in the snow), or take a horse ride through the meadows, the staff can make it happen (and will even be by your side to coach you along).

HOW TO MAKE THE MOST OF IT

Do as many activities as you can fit into your schedule. Even if you aren't typically an outdoors person, the once-in-a-lifetime offerings make for a memorable visit.

DON'T FORGET TO PACK

Red Flower candles burn throughout the spa; the brand's newest debut, the Wanderlust Petal Topped Candle, is a mix of outdoorsy, fresh floral notes that burn clean. $38, redflower.com
